

SPECIAL PUBLIC OFFERING OF ONLINE NFPA 1001 FIREFIGHTING COURSES

The JIBC Fire & Safety Division is excited to announce a special public offering of its foundational online courses that are required to gain industry certification sought after by most fire departments.

To anyone interested in firefighting, registration is open for the first three online firefighter knowledge courses that are part of JIBC's Fire Fighter Technologies Certificate \(FFTC\) program.

As these courses meet the industry NFPA 1001 standard for professional firefighters, they also meet the minimum standard for firefighter training set by the BC Office of the Fire Commissioner.

As part of this special, limited-time offering, you do not need to apply for the FFTC program to take these courses. Courses available for online registration include:

- FIRE-1053 Exterior Fire Fighter Knowledge
- FIRE-1055 Interior Fire Fighter Knowledge
- FIRE-1057 Full Service Fire Fighter Knowledge

Students will have up to four weeks to complete each online course, which must be completed in the following sequence of FIRE-1053, FIRE-1055 and FIRE-1057.

The first course, FIRE-1053 starts May 19, 2020.

Gain credit towards industry certification

Students who successfully complete these courses gain credit towards completion of the FFTC program, which provides the NFPA 1001 certification often required to pursue a career in the fire service.

Students who complete these courses will be eligible to apply for upcoming full-time or part-time practical skills training in the program within 12 months of completing the last online course. To apply for the practical portion, you will need to complete all the program prerequisites as listed on the FFTC program page.

As a special, limited offering, this is an ideal educational opportunity for those focused on becoming a firefighter, exploring new career options, or gaining additional firefighting education.

For more information about the program, visit the FFTC program webpage.

If you have any questions about this special offering, please contact the Fire & Safety Division at fftc@jibc.ca.
